Technatomy Corporation Awarded Department of Transportation Federal Transit Administration Contract

(FAIRFAX, VA. March 10, 2008) - Technatomy Corporation announced today that it has been awarded a contract with the Department of Transportation's Federal Transit Administration (FTA) to continue its support of the International Mass Transportation Program. The International Mass Transportation Program (IMTP) was established by the FTA to increase the competitiveness of the American industry in supporting international mass transportation projects. The contract will continue Technatomy's support of the IMTP, begun in 2005, for a period of five years.

To support the IMTP, Technatomy publishes a bi-monthly list of projects and tenders to update the U.S. Department of Transportation website. The IMTP mission includes the domestic dissemination of worldwide mass transportation market opportunities and informs the transit industry about new technologies by creating a two-way flow of information between the U.S. and other countries. The FTA supports cooperation with foreign public sector entities in research and development, demonstration, training, and other forms of technology transfer and exchange of experts and information. Technatomy researches international mass transit projects and tenders and monitors seminars, expositions, and similar activities in order to inform the international market about the technical quality of domestic mass transportation products and services.

"Technatomy is pleased to continue its support of the IMTP for the Department of Transportation" said Nadeem Butler, CEO of Technatomy Corporation. "Our experience with this program will continue to provide opportunities for the U.S. mass transit industry to compete in a highly specialized portion of the world economy."

This contract award continues Technatomy Corporation's support of government agency website and other Information technology support efforts. Technatomy Corporation is headquartered in Fairfax, VA.
