Technatomy Corporation Awarded Contract to Support the Department of Treasury, Internal Revenue Service

(FAIRFAX, VA. February 13, 2009) - Technatomy Corporation announced that it has been awarded a contract with the Department of Treasury, Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Office of Appeals to provide Project Management (PM) Website Development and Maintenance Support. The PM Website serves the IRS Office of Appeals Business Systems Planning staff project managers with the necessary tools, including project related artifacts for both open and closed projects and document templates. It provides project managers with the ability to upload artifacts to a Documentum cabinet for secure storage and to link to web pages within the IRS that provide information concerning policies and procedures used in updating the IRS's information systems.

The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) – Appeals Organization is charged with resolving disputes that arise between taxpayers and other operating divisions within the IRS. In its position at the confluence of case workflow from other IRS divisions, Appeals deals with a broad range of work streams and systems, without direct control over its case receipts. Appeals workflow changes regularly as a result of changes in the tax law and/or changes in IRS compliance strategy. To support this dynamic environment, Technatomy Corporation website programmers and engineers will re-design, test, implement, and transition an updated PM Website to make it user friendly and easily maintained.

In commenting on the award, Nadeem Butler, Technatomy's President and CEO said "Technatomy is pleased to partner with the Department of Treasury and IRS with this website support project. Our support will help the IRS Appeals staff to efficiently administer taxpayer appeals and resolve disputes."

This contract award continues Technatomy Corporation's support of government agency application development, Information Technology and website support efforts, and Program Management expertise. Technatomy Corporation is headquartered in Fairfax, VA.
